Greenbelters Party During National Night Out Event

by Amy Hansen

A very small child stands next to a very large fire engine at the National Night Out at Beltway Plaza on August 3, 2021.

It felt like a party from a different year and not only because Michael Jackson's 1983 hit song, Wanna Be Starting Something, played in the background. The air felt cool. The Delta variant hadn't completely come into Greenbelt's collective consciousness and everything was outdoors.

Greenbelt's part of the National Night Out on Tuesday, August 3 took place in a back parking lot of Beltway Plaza. The event is billed as an annual community-building campaign for police and community partnerships. What

by Kathleen Gallagher

Monday, August 16 is the first day for those intending to run for positions on the 44th Greenbelt City Council to officially begin the process of qualifying as candidates. In a short time, both incumbents and challengers will be filling out forms and circulating petitions in order to qualify as candidates and have their names placed on the ballot for the Tuesday, November 2 election.

Although the minimum age for voting in city elections was lowered to 16, the minimum age for running for office in Greenbelt remains 18.

Packets containing all the necessary information and forms for running will be available at City Clerk Bonita Anderson's office in the Municipal Building, 25 Crescent Road, beginning Monday, August 16. The last day for submitting the required materials is Monday, September 27 at 5 p.m. For more information, visit the city website at greenbeltnmd.gov or call 301-474-8000.

As soon as the September 27 filing deadline has passed, the election ballot can be established. With the oversight of the city's Board of Elections, candidates will draw by lottery to determine their places on the ballot.

Once certified, candidates are required to file reports of contributions and expenditures. The penalties are severe for not submitting these reports on time and may carry hefty financial penalties or removal from the ballot.

Is the Maryland Maglev Project In the Infrastructure Bill?

by Amy Hansen

City, county and national representatives weighed in on the $1 trillion Infrastructure Bill that is currently in front of the U.S. Senate, discussing whether the bill as written provides funding for the SCMaglev train project.

In a letter to U.S. Senators Chris Van Hollen and Ben Cardin sent on August 5, Greenbelt City Council members wrote that they vehemently oppose the proposed Federal funding of the maglev project. The letter asked the senators to, "Please propose new language that denies Federal funding to such ill-conceived projects."

In a similar letter, also sent on August 5, State Delegate Alonzo Washington said, "I am writing to express my strong opposition to the funding specifically included for magnetic levitation trains outlined in the Senate infrastructure legislation. Not only should this language be removed, but there should be provisions included to prevent any federal funding from benefiting the Baltimore Washington Superconducting Magnetic Levitation train, which will have

Greenbelt Family Cheers Loud Enough for Tokyo to Hear

by Jack Downs

(First of a series)

Este artículo está disponible en español en nuestra página web www.greenbeltnewsreview.com.

The Greenbelt Downs family held a reunion in West Virginia in July at the Three Otters Eco-Retreat on the shores of the Potomac River outside Paw Paw. One family member wasn't there and the Downs family couldn't have been happier.

Zachary Downs Shattuck's family owned the resort and he was usually up there summers working. But this summer and last, he had been in Colorado.

The phone call came on September 24, 1997. Teresa Downs Shattuck, Zach's mom, sharing the news she'd just received, said, "We just came from Zach's appointment. He has hypochondroplasia dwarfism." The family had known for some time that Zach was slipping right off the bottom of the growth charts. Now their fears were confirmed. How was Zach ever to live a normal,

Sharp Rise in Local Covid-19 Cases Concerns Residents

by Cathie Meetre and Clara Kuehn

Looking around in Greenbelt, it is clear that there are fewer people wearing masks and that the comfort level with meeting others has increased since a good fraction of the community has been vaccinated. Unfortunately, however, the number of new cases in the 20770 zip code is noticeably on the rise. The trend began a few weeks ago – like popcorn popping – with the odd case or two after periods with just the occasional isolated individual or zero cases. But the pattern in the last few weeks is much more concerning. For our Greenbelt population of about 25,000, the count of cases from August 2 to 9 is the equivalent of 120 cases per week per 100k population. This is well above the CDC definition of a "high" transmission rate.

The graph accompanying this article is based on data downloaded from Maryland.gov (opendata.maryland.gov/Health-and-Human-Services/MD-COVID-19-Cases-by-ZIP-Code/ntd2-dqpx). In it, the last two weeks show the noticeable jump upward in local cases. For several weeks the average hovered around zero or very close to zero, but the most recent seven-day running average shows an average of 4.6 new cases per day. This is up

All City Employees Will Need Vaccines

All employees of the City of Greenbelt must be fully vaccinated against Covid-19 by Wednesday, September 22, as decided by a late-night vote by the city council at their Monday, August 9 meeting. All city employees, including city council members, must receive their first vaccine by Wednesday, September 1 and be fully vaccinated by September 22 or submit to weekly testing until fully vaccinated.

Due to a surge of infections with the Delta variant, Councilmembers Judith Davis and Rodney Roberts requested council revisit their previous decision not to require such vaccinations.

Employees will be allowed time off to get vaccinated. Human Resources will record and track vaccination validations.

Letters to the Editor

Believe It

For the third time in recent days, I've found a bird in Greenbelt that had died for no apparent reason. Actually, the bird in the photo was dying. When I came back later to check on him, his little eyes closed and he appeared to be dead.

But I'm still seeing bird feeders filled with seeds, and bird baths filled with water. Please believe the warnings: the mystery illness that's killing birds is not only real, it's here, and luring birds to congregate at feeders and baths may be luring them to their deaths. They could be contaminating the seeds and water with whatever might be causing the illness – still unknown – and passing it to each other that way, or through close contact with each other. The illness isn't just somewhere else; it's here.

If you care about birds, please stop feeding them, for now. They won't starve – it's summer, so they have access to natural food sources.

Susan Cahill

Watching this dying bird close his eyes broke the writer's heart.

How Many Ways to Vote? And They're All Good

by Kathleen Gallagher

The City of Greenbelt would like to see more city residents vote in its city elections. Those who have been here for a while have undoubtedly noticed that the number of methods by which residents can vote has expanded considerably over the last few years to make voting as convenient as possible.

With the latest addition, there is now in-person early voting, in-person voting on Election Day and mail-in voting with various methods for turning in one's ballot, including U.S. Mail, drop-off at the Municipal Building and possibly another method to be identified later.

Because of the pandemic, Prince George's County has encouraged mail-in voting for safety in elections, as was accomplished in the primary elections last year. For voters who prefer other methods, however, more opportunities for voting are available and strongly supported, too.

An application for a mail-in ballot will be mailed to all Greenbelt registered voters by Tuesday, September 7. If one replies, a ballot will be received by mail no earlier than Friday, October 8.

Next Week: When and how to register to vote.

Donate blood on Friday, August 27 from 1 to 6 p.m. at the Community Center, 15 Crescent Road. Register at redcrossblood.org/give.html/find-drive, but note that only a few appointments remain.

The Red Cross needs new volunteers to support disaster shelters. Volunteers will help with reception, registration, food distribution, dormitory information, information collection and other vital tasks inside disaster shelters. Both entry- and supervisory-level opportunities are available.

They also need volunteers who can work in disaster shelters to address people's health needs and provide hands-on care in alignment with their professional licensure (registered nurse and licensed practical nurse/licensed vocational nurse). Daily observation and health screening for Covid-19-like illness among shelter residents may also be required. If you are an RN, LPN, LVN, APRN, NP, EMT, paramedic, MD/DO or PA with a current and unencumbered license, this position could be right for you.

Blood and platelet donors are needed. Eligible donors can help overcome the critical need for blood and ensure blood is readily available by making an appointment to give by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device.

GCC Paper Drive For School Supplies

Greenbelt Community Church (GCC), United Church of Christ begins its Annual Paper Drive and Collection of School Supplies for local schools from August through mid-September. While nothing is certain, living in Covid-19 times has taught us to look for the needs in our local communities and then begin problem solving. Thankfully, from past drives these skills are in abundance with several teachers/GCC members and friends.

Schools will open in some format and teachers and administrators will need paper, often an expense that is paid for by school staff out of their own pockets. The church is looking for copy paper, lined paper, notebooks, composition books, index cards and construction paper.

In addition, many students will need school supplies this new school year. The church is asking for colored pencils, glue (stick and bottles), pencils, pens, paper towels, hand sanitizer, tissues, crayons, post-it notes, pocket folders, etc. Many of these items are on sale at local retailers in August and September and it is easy to add a few more items to a shopping cart or to online orders.

Donations can be dropped off at the church, 1 Hillside Road, on Mondays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. (look for the office sign), or during Sunday services from 10:15 to 11:30 a.m. To donate by check, make a check out to GCC and note "paper drive" on the envelope or check. Gift cards are also accepted.

GCC is grateful to the many people who have supported this drive in the past and will continue to give generously in the future.

roughly 200 forms of dwarfism, none can be prevented since they are genetic in nature. Before he reached the age of 2, at a follow-up appointment, the pediatrician asked Zach to “throw the ball.” Something special happened. It was clear Zach had an arm.

From his earliest years in Greenbelt, Zach was fascinated by balls, any kind. Zach first played T-ball in Greenbelt and from the beginning the height difference was dramatic. Comments ranged from “Oh, look how cute! Is he somebody’s little brother? I wonder how come he’s on the field?” to “Won’t he get hurt?”

Of course, by his second time at bat, the coaches and parents were shouting, “Move back! This kid can hit!” On Zach’s eighth birthday, he wept because his parents thoughtlessly got him a bicycle, not a ball.

Zach attended Greenbelt Nursery School and his dad, Rich, was on the board of directors. Zach also attended kindergarten at Greenbelt Elementary School, graduating in 2002. That summer, he and his family, including baby sister Casey, moved to Mount Airy, Md.

Zach didn’t just play sports. He lived and breathed sports. From his earliest days in T-ball, and through his years of soccer and baseball, he not only participated, but excelled. He was a natural athlete.

He always had a consistent set of fans, given the 14 first cousins – all children of the eight kids of Jack and Dee Downs, Greenbelt residents since 1955. One of the Downs, Paul, was Greenbelt’s Outstanding Citizen in 2017. A big impetus for the fandom is that at every level, the family assumed it would be Zach’s last opportunity to compete equally with the normal kids who towered over him.

But somehow, Zach kept going. He’s played team soccer, baseball and basketball at every level, and in high school, played junior varsity basketball, wrestled varsity and started on the soccer team in the Maryland state semifinals for South Carroll High School against Fallston. Before a large crowd on a chilly Friday night, Zach’s team lost a close game.

Zach participated in the 2013 World Dwarf Games at Michigan State University in Lansing. The World Dwarf Games take place every four years bringing Little People from around the world for an Olympic-style athletic competition.

That year, in pure Zach fashion, he signed up for a host of sporting events, including sports he’d never tried, such as track and field. At the last minute, Zach, at his dad’s urging, signed up for a swimming event – the 25-meter freestyle. “But I can’t swim,” Zach protested.

After the race, Zach was approached by several of the swimmers and coaches. “Good form. You’re a natural.” “Who do you swim for?” “Who’s coaching you?” “Are you trying out for the Paralympics?”

(Next week, the story continues. Zach enters Frostburg, finds a coach and starts his amazing journey to Tokyo and the 2021 Paralympics.)

The playground on Research Road is newly decorated with a rocketship. Let the countdown begin.

Living a Good Life

Leo Jones with with Worship Associate Ebony Contreras

What makes a good life? There may be as many answers as there are human beings. But what are the essentials? Are there commonalities across race, ethnicity and culture? Has the perception of what is a good life changed over time? What did our parents, grandparents and great grandparents think of when they pondered this question? Did the question even occur to them? How have our modern sensibilities shaped the way we think and feel about a good life? There are so many questions. We will ponder them as we explore the spiritual foundations of this complex issue.

Vax Scholarships

In an effort to encourage Marylanders to protect themselves from Covid-19, the Maryland Higher Education Commission and the Maryland Department of Health (MDH) have set up a $1 million VaxU Scholarship Promotion fund for vaccinated residents ages 12 to 17. The state is offering up to 20 scholarships during nine statewide drawings. Those who win will receive a $50,000 scholarship through a Prepaid College Trust or a College Investment Plan from the Maryland 529 plans. The funds will go toward covering the cost of tuition and fees for a four-year college or university. Students who have a registered Maryland address at the time of their vaccination and who get vaccinated in Maryland (not at federal locations) will be automatically entered in the promotion for a chance to win.

Two winners will be selected each week on Mondays until September 6. On this, the last draw date, four winners will be selected. MDH will run the drawings, and every week a random generator will decide prize winners. Alternate winners will be selected in case original winners do not accept the prizes, are deemed ineligible or do not produce all necessary documentation and information to be validated as eligible.

For more information on eligibility and the promotion, visit the Maryland Higher VaxU Scholarship Promotion website. For all questions, email VaxUScholarship.mhec@maryland.gov.

Prince George’s County Rental Assistance Eligibility, Info

by Matthew Arbach

Dr. Liz Park, director of Greenbelt CARES (top left) offers rental assistance at a virtual town hall on July 29, with the help of Tamika Gauvin (bottom right) and Kayla Williams (bottom left).

Este artículo está disponible en español en nuestra página web www.greenbeltnewsreview.com.

The county’s Emergency Rental Assistance Program (ERAP) is continuing to receive applications from landlords and tenants. On Thursday, July 29, Deputy Director of the Department for Housing and Community Development Tamika Gauvin and Staff Attorney from Community Legal Services (CLS) Kayla Williams were present at a virtual town hall, hosted by Director of Greenbelt CARES Dr. Liz Park, providing information on the process, rights and services available to county residents in need of rental assistance during this challenging time.

Gauvin began by revealing the three sources of funding for ERAP. There are two sources dubbed ERA 1, with one straight from the U.S. Treasury Department, at $27.1 million, and the other also from Treasury, at $27 million, but funneled through the state. The third, named ERA 2, is $30.5 million, and comes from the American Rescue Plan Act. ERA 1 is set to continue through September 2022, and ERA 2 to 2025. So far, $20 million has been spent. Any funds that are not used in other jurisdictions are potentially eligible for the county, as Prince George’s County leads the state in funds delivered so far.

ERAP Assistance

As of July 23, ERAP has received 676 landlord applications, with 361 funded, and 3,613 tenant applications, with 302 funded. Initial filings were predominantly from landlords, with tenants experiencing a spike in recent weeks. Gauvin said the landlords are a good mix of small and large, emphasizing that the smaller landlords are enduring the most financial stress due to their more limited earnings.

Eligibility is restricted to those with a leasing agreement or a month-to-month agreement. Income eligibility is allowed for those with up to 80 percent Area Median Income (AMI), with priority focused on household income up to 50 percent AMI. A new policy is the use of Qualified Census Tracts (QCT), which reveal the predominant income bracket of a given area. Those living in an eligible QCT are not required to present income documentation. For those in higher income areas, documentation is still required. Another new eligibility mandate is that financial hardship needs only to have occurred during the Covid-19 pandemic and not simply as a result of it.

ERAP will pay for up to 18 months of arrearages in rent and utilities beginning April 2020. There is no limit to the amount paid, based upon program guidelines.

Help with Applying

Some important points to be aware of are: service is first come first served; no IDs or SSNs are required; no questions on immigration status; the best outcome comes from tenants and landlords working together; and, there are many community partners that can assist in the application process.

“CLS,” said Williams, is “a non-profit organization that provides civil legal education, advice and free legal representation to low-income individuals in Prince George’s County.” Beside their office, CLS assistance can be obtained by seeking them out at the Hyattsville District Court (on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays), as they provide same-day tenant representation.

The three moratoriums that can be used in defense of a rental complaint are: the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) federal evictions moratorium (now extended to October 3 and applicable to counties with substantial or high level of Covid-19); the governor’s Temporary Eviction Prohibition (set to expire August 15); and the county’s CB-78-2020 bill (whereupon a landlord may not raise rent more than 2.6 percent in cases without a substantial loss of income and the prevention of a rental raise notice and the imposing of late fees and penalties during the state of emergency and within 90 days after the state of emergency was lifted on July 1).

According to Williams in a separate interview, concerning the CDC moratorium, “There is no guarantee the moratorium will last through October 3 or that it will apply to our county the entire time.” The CDC moratorium covers only evictions due to failure to pay rent. Said Williams, “The moratorium is not automatic and must be raised in court as a defense,” advising tenants to get a signed CDC declaration to their landlords immediately.

Williams stressed that the eviction moratoriums are delays only and that rent must be paid eventually.

Recommendations

Williams made several strong recommendations: always attend one’s court hearing, as this is the best time to notify the court and the landlord of the applying for assistance, raise a defense and negotiate a postponement; it is best to reach out to the landlord first, as more time and consideration can be obtained, due to the court’s lack of leeway in its adherence to the law; and, to pay what you can, even if it’s a small amount.

CARES Assistance

Greenbelt CARES continues to provide a rental and utility assistance program. One is required to live within the Greenbelt city limits. A one-time maximum of $3,000 can be provided for emergency rental assistance and $250 for utility assistance. One cannot have received county assistance to qualify. Greenbelt CARES can be reached at cares@greenbelt.org.

City Hears Future IT Needs, Rundown on Pandemic Work

by Matthew Arbach

Dale Worley, the City of Greenbelt Director of Information Technology (IT), said that it is only a matter of time before the city IT system falls prey to a cyberattack, citing the inevitable intrusion from a determined cyber assailant. The city IT Department is continuing in its efforts to forestall such an attack and enable a speedy recovery in the event that it occurs. On Monday, August 2, Worley gave an update on his department’s activities to the Greenbelt City Council and presented a set of recommendations to improve cybersecurity.

During the pandemic, IT has deployed 60 laptops for employee home use, increasing the VPN (Virtual Private Network, for a secure internet pathway) capacity to better facilitate this. In conjunction with Greenbelt Recreation, 275 virtual recreation classes have been created, leading to the city receiving a Solutions Award from the Public Technology Institute. Other achievements included a transition of the Greenbelt Police Department dispatch and Toughbooks to the county Computer-Aided Dispatch (CAD) system and an upgrade and consolidation of the city’s network switches. IT is working to have Windows 10 and Office 2019 for use in city departments, as well as One Drive storage. Future funds from the American Rescue Plan may be used to fund a feasibility study for broadband use in the city.

Worley said that city employee users rated a 90 percent on the Security Scorecard in their ability to recognize and deal with cyber threats. Worley reported on the city’s ubiquitous use of data backup protocols.

IT is focused on document management, to make all city paperwork electronic to increase efficiency. The process has begun in Human Resources, with the city manager’s office involved as well. The cost of expanding document management to Finance and the city clerk’s office is estimated at $15,000.

Worley and council advocated for an audit of the city’s IT by an outside agency. Currently, $10,000 is available in the IT budget to fund this, with council approval needed for additional funds.

City use of the Comcast fiber network is nearing its end, requiring a decision from IT (informed by consultation with the county’s INet Committee) and council on how to replace it, either with a new franchise or the construction of its own system. Concerning the latter, an overall cost of $75,000 was estimated.

Councilmember Emmett Jordan stressed the importance of a more integrated system for greater usability. Councilmember Edward Putens responded that having only one overarching system could lead to a more complete failure. Worley acknowledged that there was always a tradeoff in any route chosen.

According to Worley, IT is both under-resourced (as of Fiscal Year 2021, IT spending was at 3 percent) and understaffed, at five employees in charge of the entire city system. Worley speculated that for the city to have a round-the-clock IT service, three times the current staff would be required.

Council felt it was time to take cybersecurity very seriously and make sure adequate funding is set aside.

Worley extolled the city IT system as “solid, secure and resilient,” using “core standards” in its purchase of hardware and software to maintain optimum performance.

Yet, even though there has been no evidence of intrusion, moving forward, Worley cautioned against being complacent and not being as prepared as possible.

Woodlands Caretakers Tackle Invasive Species Near GES

by Lin Orrin and Zach Conron

Adults and young people who live near Greenbelt Elementary School (GES) spent Saturday morning undertaking trail maintenance in Parcel X, an area of woods located across the street from GES with a trail that leads to the Stream Valley Park. The cleanup goal was to clear the trail of walking hazards and invasive plants. Catherine Plaisant, a former research scientist at the University of Maryland, demonstrated the proper way to get rid of poison ivy along the trail and pointed out other invasive plants while also tagging friendly native species with red ribbons.

Several invasive varieties were targeted for removal to prevent their spread, including multiflora rose, Japanese honeysuckle and knotweed. Poison ivy and green-brier, which are indigenous, were trimmed back from areas adjacent to the trail since they can be harmful to hikers. Native trees or shrubs that were protected included black cherry, dogwood, ash, native azaleas and wild blueberries.

The volunteer group called, Parcel X Caretakers, was formed unofficially in the fall of 2020 after several members who live adjacent to the woods began to notice how rapidly growing bamboo was invading their yards. Bamboo can be very persistent and a threat to native biodiversity. Under the guidance of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) Woodlands Committee, a couple dozen neighbors cut the entire grove of bamboo and committed to regularly trimming it to the forest floor. Other bamboo groves in Greenbelt are being addressed in similar fashion by volunteers.

Excited by their initial success and with a mind for more long-term projects, the Parcel X Caretakers became official in June 2021. In July the group replaced the rotted handrails on the green footbridge and repainted it. In the future, they plan to remove invasive plants and replace them with native plantings in order to strengthen and diversify the ecosystem and to do so in a way that is both responsible and sustainable.

Zach Conron, a GHI Woodlands Committee member who organized the first effort last fall, says this is definitely a multi-person endeavor. "I'm not as knowledgeable about the plants or many other relevant skill sets as other GHI Woodlands Committee or Parcel X Caretakers volunteers. What I bring to these projects more than anything else is enthusiasm and sweat. Like many other residents, I decided to move here three years ago in part because I am passionate about the environment. My wife Sarah and I were most drawn to Greenbelt because of the strong sense of community we feel here. Witnessing so many of our neighbors devote their time to protect and restore our common space is proof of the solidarity we have with each other and future generations."

Volunteers Anton, Megan, Gloria and Jonathan Rytting and Zach Conron watch as Catherine Plaisant demonstrates how to remove poison ivy.

The group aspires to be a prototype for other local caretaker groups. There are other similar wooded parcels throughout central Greenbelt that need volunteers to protect and rejuvenate them. Parcel X Caretakers meet in front of 65-A Ridge Road on the first Saturday of every month from 9 to 11 a.m. to work on projects. New volunteers are welcome.

Composting, Pollinators Are Center Stage for Four Cities

by Melissa Signorini

The future should rot ... in compost bins, that is.

Composting in Greenbelt was discussed on Wednesday, July 28, at a virtual meeting of the Four Cities Coalition (Greenbelt, College Park, Berwyn Heights and New Carrollton), which was hosted by Berwyn Heights.

CMON, Composting Municipalities Organizing Now, made up of both municipality representatives and residents, is a leading group in this drive. Currently there are only a few food-composting facilities in the area. Dr. Luisa Robles, Greenbelt sustainability coordinator, said that CMON wants to see the establishment of a network of "smaller composting facilities throughout our communities so that we don't have to drive our food scraps to Western Branch." Western Branch, the facility owned by Prince George's County, can hold up to 20,000 tons of food waste a year. Another facility in Virginia can hold the same.

Compost Crew is a locally owned food-scrap recycling business that currently supports Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights and College Park in their food scrap drop-off programs. CEO Ben Perry praised the communities in leading by example for food scrap composting, saying, "You have paved the way for other municipalities to follow in your footsteps since you guys started your programs." He said that the goal is to build a self-sustaining food-recycling program, one that can be supported by creating local composting infrastructure in the four cities. Perry explained that food scrap recycling supports growing food locally at farms and gardens. He said that it makes possible a close, tight-knit system in one's own municipality to go and see firsthand the food that is being grown, recycled, recovered and composted. "It can be such a tight, visible, transparent system," he added.

Compost Crew has already built some small, turnkey modular farm facilities to be used for food-scrap recycling, two in Montgomery County and one now being built in Prince George's County. Perry hopes that efforts by the Prince George's County Council to expand the definition of composting in the Zoning Rewrite legislation will allow small-scale composting facilities to be located near neighborhoods.

Also at the meeting, Greenbelt was introduced as a new Bee City USA affiliate. Greenbelt Environmental Coordinator Kevin Carpenter-Driscoll discussed ways to work with other municipalities to come up with and share resources for wildlife corridors and habitats for wildlife, especially pollinators. "We think it'd be a great opportunity to work together to try and restore some native habitats to our native pollinators which are incredibly important to our food web system." As an addition to resources already listed on Bee City USA's website, Greenbelt has individually added some resources. This includes a list of native plants local to the city, and a list of places where these plants can be purchased.

From July 31 through August 5, the number of new cases each day were 3, 7, 3, 3, 10, 3, 3, respectively, for a total of 32. Since the pandemic began, the cumulative number of cases in 20770 is 2,108.

There is no information available to say whether these are

Delta-variant cases or if the individuals are very sick. It doesn't say if they had been vaccinated or if they have been hospitalized. But it is definitely a cautionary note to our residents to keep their guard up. Consider wearing a mask in public again even if not mandated, evaluate attending crowded gatherings and pay attention to handwashing and distancing.

The Bill Says

The 2,702-page Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act document mentions maglev technologies three times.

First, on page 75. The document proposes funding for “planning and construction of projects that facilitate intermodal connections between emerging transportation technologies, such as magnetic levitation and hyperloop.”

Maglev technology comes up again on page 763, where the bill provides for “Research, development, and testing to advance and facilitate innovative rail projects, including projects using electromagnetic guideways in an enclosure in a very low-pressure environment.”

And then on page 853, the term comes up again as the bill allows the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) to “prescribe regulations governing railroad-related noise emission standards for trains operating on the general railroad system of transportation at speeds exceeding 160 miles per hour, including noise related to magnetic levitation systems and other new technologies not traditionally associated with railroads.”

Van Hollen Answers

Van Hollen answered Washington's letter on August 6. After explaining the pieces of the bill that he is proud of, including funding for the Environmental Protection Agency's Chesapeake Bay Program, the Baltimore Red Line and money for high-speed internet across the state, Van Hollen writes that “the bipartisan infrastructure bill does not change federal law or eligibility for federal funding for Maglev and does not provide any direct or indirect funding for the Maglev project in Maryland.”

He goes into detail about each point of reference, explaining why the Infrastructure Bill may include maglev technology but does not cover the Maryland project in particular.

Van Hollen closes by saying, “I have serious concerns about the ongoing project in Maryland and I continue to press for more information and time for public comment on the project, including by successfully pushing for an extended public comment period on the Environmental Impact Statement.”

Washington Responds

Washington responded to the receipt of Van Hollen's letter, saying that while appreciative of the Senator's general tone, “The language in the bill remains very concerning.”

He pointed out that there are no current maglev trains running in the country and only a few under consideration. “The open-ended nature of the language remains concerning, and it is my hope that our Congressional delegation will take steps to ensure that Northeast Maglev is explicitly excluded from receiving funding under this legislation.”

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY

Draft Environmental Assessment and Finding of No Significant Impact

U.S. Department of Agriculture

Environmental Assessment for the Proposed Renovations of Buildings 002, 005, and 308
Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agricultural Research Center

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has prepared an Environmental Assessment (EA) to analyze the potential impacts associated with the proposed renovation of Buildings 002, 005, and 308 with the construction of small additions onto Buildings 002 and 308 and a small greenhouse for Building 005 at the Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) located in Beltsville, Prince George's County, Maryland. This notice announces the availability of the EA for public review and comment. The EA was prepared in accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969, 40 CFR Parts 1500-1508, and evaluates the potential impacts of the Proposed Action and No Action alternatives. Under the Proposed Action alternative, BARC Buildings 002, 005, and 308 would be renovated to eliminate environmental hazards as well as provide updated and more efficient equipment and working space for workers. The additions to Buildings 002 and 308 would provide adequate working space to meet programmatic requirements for divisions within the buildings.

The EA is open for a 10-day public review from August 12th through August 21st. An electronic copy of the draft EA and Finding of No Significant Impact (FNSI) can be found on USDA's website at: <https://www.ars.usda.gov/northeast-area/docs/environmental-assessment/>. Hard copies can be obtained by contacting Ms. Janice Rogers, Facilities, Division, USDA, 10300 Baltimore Avenue, Bldg 426 BARC-East, Room 108, Beltsville, MD 20705, or via email at Janice.Rogers@usda.gov.

Comments on the draft EA and FNSI should be submitted to Ms. Janice Rogers at the addresses listed above no later than 30 days from publication of this notice.

GREENBELT 1937

GREENBELT WAS THE FIRST OF THREE PLANNED GARDEN TOWNS BUILT AND OWNED BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT DURING THE ADMINISTRATION OF PRESIDENT FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT. IT WAS A "NEW DEAL" EXPERIMENT IN COMMUNITY PLANNING OF HOUSING TO URBAN PLANNERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD. THE 885 ORIGINAL HOMES WERE BUILT IN A SERIES OF CLUSTERS, JOINED BY INTERIOR WALKS AND CIRCULAR CENTRAL BUSINESS. CIVIC AND RECREATION FACILITIES. GREENBELT WAS INCORPORATED JUNE 1, 1937 AS THE FIRST MARYLAND CITY WITH COUNCIL — MANAGER GOVERNMENT. IN 1952 THE RESIDENTS OF THE COMMUNITY FORMED A COOPERATIVE AND PURCHASED MOST OF THE GOVERNMENT BUILT HOUSES. BY 1954, THE U.S. GOVERNMENT HAD SOLD ALL DEVELOPED PROPERTY AND MOST VACANT LAND WHILE MANY NEW NEIGHBORHOODS ARE ALSO INCLUDED IN THE PRESENT CITY. THE ORIGINAL PLANNED COMMUNITY CONTINUES AS A COOPERATIVE.

that translates to is a party.

More than 100 people showed up, laughing as they shot hoops, stood in line for pizza or chicken and admired the motorcycles from the Platinum Rollers Club. Little ones chased soap bubbles, chalked the blacktop and hugged the costumed fire-mascot.

Some people wore masks while others didn't.

Police and fire officials joined in some of the games and handed out printed information. Members of the city council and county council wandered through the crowd greeting people. Businesses from Beltway Plaza gave away free food, while The Space encouraged artistic adventures and Greenbelt CARES handed out information about health screenings and eviction prevention.

One of the highlights, beside the free food, was a K-9 demonstration by Police Officer Gerald Potts and his canine partner Duco, a Belgian Malinois who showed off his skills to the crowd. First, Potts gave two young volunteers cell phones to hold onto for a few minutes while he explained where Duco would come from. Then he asked them to throw the phones into the grass. When Duco emerged from a car, he found the phones and alerted Potts by sitting. Duco's reward was playing with a ball for a few minutes before demonstrating his understanding of hand signals and whistled commands. After the event, Potts asked the kids to line up if they wanted to greet the dog. Duco remained calm, though his energy didn't seem to diminish at all.

The party lasted from 6 to 8 p.m. Another National Night Out event was held in the Hunting Ridge community on Hanover Parkway, but drew a smaller crowd.

Members of the Platinum Rollers Motorcycle Club gather for an informal portrait.

Under the supervision of Officer Gerald Potts of the Greenbelt Police Department, children at the National Night Out line up to interact with and pet Duco, the Greenbelt police dog.
